"Go With The Idea You Are Not Superior To Nature But Part Of It"

BY RAYLYN PENNEY

We caught a few minutes with Lester Rowntree, author and naturalist, before she left for her summer visit to the wildflowers of the High Sierra. She had recently returned to her Carmel Highlands home after her annual springtime trip to the deserts of Southern California.

To a lady who has "botanized her way through the British Isles, Canada, every state but one in Mexico and every state in the United States, this sort of tour is routine.

To someone less hardy and adaptable, any one of Mrs. Rowntree's lonely excursions into primitive areas would be enough adventure to last a lifetime.

Since she regularly visits places inaccessible to cars, horses and camp, having the means of usually back-packing, which means she must personally transport among her limited dunnage every item of food, apparel and equipment she will need for a pumber of weeks.

It's hard work but rewarding, Mrs. Rowntree believes, the ultimate reward being a better understanding of ecology. No one can spend a fortnight alone in a natural wilderness without learning truth about himself and his relation to his environment.

Anyone who knows Mrs. Rowntree at all will be well aware that this last statement is the crux of her message to mankind as a writer and a person. She enlarges on the dictionary definition of ecology as the science dealing with the relations between organisms and environment.

(e.g. A good ecologist, set down in a strange land, will know exactly what sort of thing he can expect to find after he has first examined one thing only. Or to put the theory even more simply: A man who enters a schoolroom and sees blackboards can reasonably expect to find chalk there also.)

To Lester Rowntree ecology is "a way of taking everything in nature into account, with the realization that some of the things we think are unimportant are big and important. It can be as small as a flea or as big as eternity."

In a unique and lengthy career, Mrs. Rowntree has been variously a lecturer, gardener, op-

Planning Board Frowns On C-1 Land Use

The Carmel Planning Commission does not wish to amend the zoning ordinance to permit automatic laundromats in the C-1 business district according to the report of the commission's steering committee read yesterday afternoon. John Melville, who had requested permission to operate such a business on Dolores Street, was in the planning commission audience. He was told by Chairman George Wilcox, after the report was given, that he could either ask for an amendment to the zoning ordinance or request re-zoning of the laundromat site.

Mr. Melville then told commissioners he did not want to request re-zoning as he did not approve of such action. He emphasized, however, that no C-2 business district property, where laundromats are permitted, was available, and "extremely inflated price" of any piece of property for sale in this area.

Other action taken by planning commissioners yesterday afternoon was to allow George Sharp to redesign a display window in a shop in Pantiles Court; send to committee to study an inventory of all master plan progress in this area which was sent to Carmel Planning Commission by the County

Iceland's Symphony Manager Was Here For Bach Festival

Jon Thorarinsson, composer and general manager of the National Symphony Orchestra of Iceland, came to Carmel for the last three days of the Bach Festival as a guest of the State Department.

He was invited to this country to be present at the performance of a song cycle which he has composed using the words of three poems by Christina Rossetti. The songs will be featured at the Peninsula Music Festival in Fish Creek, Wisconsin, in August. During his six weeks' visit to the United States, Mr. Thorarinsson is being sent by the State Department to outstanding musical events in this country, one of which was the Bach Festival. He was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Moore while in Carmel.

School Board To Buy 4 1/2 Acres Of Hatton Site Tonight

The governing board of the Carmel Unified School District meets tonight at 7:00 o'clock in the high school library to work through a routine agenda and probably authorize spending $13,500 for the purchase of four and a half acres of the Hatton property in Carmel Valley, the first parcel of the 45-acre school site that is scheduled for purchase over a 10 year period in four and a half acre chunks. This can be managed out of the recently approved $800,000 bond fund since construction costs for new school buildings are lower than anticipated. The original plan was to buy the site out of operating budget.

Superintendent Stuart Mitchell will report on construction progress at the various schools. At the high school and River foundations are poured. At Woods, the custodian's shack has been removed so that grading can go forward for blacktopping the playfield.

Improvements are completed at Tularcitos, $8,032 worth, consisting of vinyl tile floors, acoustic tile for ceilings and grading and paving lower and upper playgrounds.

Mr. Mitchell will inform the board that Carmel High School has been invited to participate with 20 other schools in an educational research and experimental project under the sponsorship of Stanford University. Educational methods and administrative organization and techniques will be tried out in the member schools which will pool their findings. Fee for joining the project would cost Carmel District $300 for first year and probably $600 per year thereafter. Mr. Mitchell will seek board

Little Pfeiffer, Full Of Woe, May Seek Annexation To Carmel School District

The county committee for school district organization will meet at Carmel High School on August 11 or 18, date not yet firm, to consider the woes of little one-room, one-teacher Pfeiffer school on the north boundary of Big Sur State Park, east of Highway One. The solution may be to annex Pfeiffer and Palo Colorado school districts to the Carmel Unified School District.

Schuster, Petri To Be Soloists For Co. Symphony

Yesterday, internationally famous cellist Joseph Schuster in a telephone conversation from Switzerland, told Eugene Harrah, first vice president of the Monterey County Symphony Association, that he would be here in May to play Haydn's cello concerto as soloist with the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra directed by Gregory Millar.

Pianist Egon Petri, equally renowned artist, is soloist on the opening Symphony program this season in October. He will play Liszt's Piano Concert No. 1 in E flat with the Symphony.

Both musicians have played here previously on Carmel Music Society programs. Each expressed pleasure at being invited to return to perform with our Symphony under Gregory Millar's direction.

Planners Set Aug. 6 For Public Hearing On 40-60 Ordinance

Yesterday afternoon Carmel planning commissioners set August 6 for a public hearing on the urgency interim zoning ordinance amendment to control motel building sent to them by the city council. At the same time commissioners signified approval of the C-1 and C-2 districts' 60-40 land use ratio in the amendment, which, if approved and passed after public hearing, will go to the council for a second public hearing. If the council approves it will go into effect at the end of August and will be law until the interim zoning ordinance expires in December.

The amendment requires that the square footage covered by multiple dwellings shall not exceed 60 percent of the building site. Each dwelling unit must have an allotment of 1,000 square feet of building site and not less than 400 square feet of this area must be open space devoted to off-street parking and landscaping.

The Board of Adjustments of the planning commission is empowered under the amendment to grant a variance in certain instances not to exceed 10 percent of these requirements.

One off-street parking space is demanded for each dwelling unit. The Board of Adjustments may reduce this requirement if they

The California Department of Beaches and Parks, the California State Highway Department, and the United States Navy are directly responsible for Pfeiffer's troubles, but there is no indication that any of these mighty agencies will do anything to alleviate the dilemma in which they have placed this little one-room country school.

Pfeiffer school has to enlarge. It must build another classroom because of the influx of children from the new Navy installation south of Big Sur Light. But it hasn't space to build another room because it is hemmed in on two sides by Big Sur State Park and on a third by the California State Highway maintenance station, and neither of them is inclined to sell or give Pfeiffer the land it needs. Pfeiffer could abandon the pocket it occupies and build a new two-room school somewhere else, but all available land in its district is too hilly or too windy or too inaccessible. The only practicable site is over the south boundary line of Palo Colorado school district, and you can't build a school in somebody else's district. But if both Palo Colorado and Pfeiffer districts were annexed to the Carmel Unified School district, then the site Pfeiffer wants would be in the Carmel Unified School district and Pfeiffer could build on it.

But Pfeiffer can't annex to the Carmel district unless Palo Colorado does, because Palo Colorado is between Carmel and Pfeiffer; and would Palo Colorado, with its neat little school house sitting on the slope of the hill east of Highway One, just south of Palo Colorado Canyon, with no troubles whatsoever, want to annex? It depends on Monterey. Yes, Monterey! Monterey was certain to come in this somewhere.

Though Pfeiffer and Palo Colorado are independent grammar school districts, they belong to Monterey High School district and send their high school students, when they have them, to Monterey. But now Monterey is considering forming a unified school district, bringing their grammar schools (Monterey City School System) and their high school (Monterey Union High School) under one administration, like Carmel. If Monterey forms a unified school district, Pfeiffer and Palo Colorado can no longer belong to the high school district. So they will have no high school. They could not annex to Monterey's contemplated unified school district because they are not contiguous; Carmel is in between. Why they can belong to Monterey High School with Carmel between but

MERCHANT NINE DROPPED IN PG TOURNAMENT

Losses to the Santa Cruz Merchants and the 19th Hole softball clubs ousted the Carmel Merchants from play in the Pacific Grove Tri-County Tournament which selects a team for participation in the State Meet. Paul Artelan's ambitious Merchants won three games during the tourney but found the going rough against the classy Santa Cruz nine which is a co-favorite with Rasmussen & Moody to pick up all the chips. Johnny DeAmaral pitched all the tournament games for Carmel and was visibly tired in the last outing when the 19th Hole decided him, 3 to 0. Jim Fisher was the only Carmel swinger to get a hit in the losing cause against the 19th Hole, blasting out a triple in the fifth inning.

Jim Morton, former Pine Cone hurler, pitched the Rasmussen & Moody nine into the finals Monday night, shutting out the Santa Cruz Merchants, 2 to 0, on a nifty two-hitter. The powerful right-hander appears to be the best pitcher in the tournament and could take R&M to the State Meet.

CARMEL SWIM CLUB HOSTS WATSONVILLE SATURDAY

The Carmel School District's undefeated swim team goes after victory number five for the current season this Saturday morning, hosting the Watsonville natators in a 10:00 o'clock meet which figures to be keenly contested in all events. Strong in the swimming events but weak in diving, Watsonville has the depth to offer the classy Carmel swimmers a stern test in this return meet. Carmel splashed to a comfortable victory in the first meeting this season, but the visitors have added some of the powerful swimmers from Watsonville High School to augment the 15-and-over entry list.

In their last meet with the Pacific Grove Club, the Carmel swimmers outscored the visitors by over 100 points as the topheavy Carmel entries scored in every event and swept eight of the swimming events.

CARMEL CRICKET CLUB BOWS TO MARIN

Unable to sustain a consistent offense against the offerings of bowler Rex Alford, the Carmel Club dropped a league match to the Marin Cricket Club last Sunday afternoon at Bardarson Field. Also, one of the craftiest bowlers in the league, was in rare form as he took five wickets for 20 runs. Rex Whitworth was the leading batsman for Carmel, shuttling over the pitch for 12 runs. Harry Cordon wielded the flat bat with devastating results as he led the Marin offense with 30 runs and still eligible to bat.

This Sunday afternoon at 1:00 o'clock, the San Mateo Cricket Club will provide the opposition for the local cricketers in another league match. Plans are also in the hopper to bring one of the top cricket teams in the Los Angeles area to Carmel for a match with the local club.

YOUTH CENTER SPORTS ACTIVITY

Action in the Youth Center softball league continues tonight with the Old Alumni tackling the New Alumni in the feature 8:15 game. Rivalry has been intense between the old timers and the new graduates with each squad holding a win over the other. In a 7:15 fracas, the combined soph-junior aggregation tangles with the Youth Center all-stars.

In the popular Youth Center bowling league, the play has been hot and heavy with Gerald Taylor showing the way with a 266 average. Pat Bein is in the runner-up spot with 261, closely followed by Dick Hubbell with 258 and Dick Crispo with 254. Taylor also holds the single game lead with a score of 144. Mixed bowling activity is scheduled at the Pacific Grove El Rancho alleys on Wednesday nights.

BOYS' TOWN 1958 LITTLE LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

Two home run smashes by David Rosenkranz paved the way for the Boys' Town Little League club's 5-3 victory over Wilder & Jones in the playoff game for the 1958 title. Played Monday night before a capacity crowd at the cozy Little League ball park, the game was a fitting climax to a highly successful Little League season. Boys' Town had won the first half play with Wilder & Jones well out of contention at the start of the season. However, the plumpers came with a rush in the second half to tie with Sport Shop at the conclusion of the first half.

Monday night's playoff game was a close one all the way as the W&J lads roared back to knot the count at 3-3 in the third inning. The clothiers got off to a three-run lead in the first heat when Rosenkranz hit the first of his two homers. The Sports iced it up in the fifth inning when Rosenkranz found the range for another four-master. David also hit a two-bagger to give him a solid 3-for-4 for the playoff game. Tim Brattin and Mike Baumgartner were the leading hitters for the losers, both collecting two blows in four trips to the plate. Mike Brasher handled the pitching chores for W&J and pitched a good three-hitter only to see victory go out the door on the home runs by opposing hurler Rosenkranz.

Members of the championship Boys' Town team are: Mark Snopkowski, Clinton Macy, Andre Pashin, David Rosenkranz, Mike Paul, Ron Jella, Tom Leutzinger, Steve Trapkus, Vic Dubets, Don Geisen, and Maynard Peterson. Bill Rosenkranz, father of the hitting Rosenkranz, manages the champs and he is assisted by George Macy. The runner-up Wilder & Jones team is manned by Jose Fernandez, Tim Brattin, Mike Baumgartner, Grant Pollock, Danny Aldrich, Greg Jones, Mike Brasher, Mike Hutchinson, Dennis Jones, Jack Mahoney, and Wesley Morris. Jack Cate masterminds the strategy for W&J with Art Harber doing the assisting.

Fern Hyde

By Daisy Bostick

All who have ever known Fern Hyde will be saddened by her death which occurred last Tuesday night at the Peninsula Community Hospital. Her late husband, Albert T. Hyde—Bert as he was known to everyone—died several years ago and Fern has since lived mostly in the Los Angeles area.

Mrs. Hyde's three children are Jean (Mrs. Roy Larson) of Carmel, Betty (Mrs. Robert Mitchell) of Dos Palos, and Albert T. Jr., who lives with his wife and three children in Buffalo, New York. There are seven grandchildren in all.

The Hydies belonged to the "Mentholatum family." Bert's father was the inventor of the product and founded the company. Bert was manager and director of the business and his wife and Mrs. Hyde's son, Albert Jr.—Laddie as he was known here—is now its president. A brother of Bert's, Alexander Hyde, spent a great deal of time around Carmel in the early days. Fern leaves three sisters, one of whom, Roxana Rodgers, lives in Carmel.

Although Fern had been ill for some time her death was unexpected. As for me, I feel that we have lost something gay and sparkling. She had a keen sense of humor and always made a joke of something, even her illness. There was never a dull moment when Fern Hyde was around. And she had a great talent—the art of making friends—who will all be grieved at her passing.

The Hyde family came to Carmel in 1928. They bought the old stone house at the corner of Eighth Avenue and Monte Verde Street and lived there for several years. Their home was a center of hospitality with children and friends always coming and going.

It is planned that the service will be held tomorrow afternoon and the children have requested that friends omit flowers and instead that they send a donation to the new Peninsula Hospital Fund.

When Comet, the Guide Dog of Eben Whittlesey, died unexpectedly, Whittlesey took time out from his busy law practice to return to Guide Dogs for the Blind, Inc. for his third dog guide. Whittlesey is actively engaged in civic affairs. He is a charter member and past president of the Carmel Lions Club, has been president of the Monterey Peninsula Community Chest, an official of the Carmel Business Assn., and has served on the board of the local Red Cross Chapter and twice as president of the Monterey County Symphony Association. Whittlesey and Regan, a German Shepherd, will complete their training Saturday and be home in Carmel soon.

With The Idea You Are Not Superior But Part Of Nature

erator of a seed business, hybridizer, landscaper and introducer of plants to areas where they are not indigenous but where conditions are sympathetic to their growth. Usually she spends some five or six months a year on tour. Once she spent an entire year wandering the States, lecturing, collecting seeds and plants, paying her way with what she earned as she went. (No, she didn't back-pack this tour. She used her car, but she never stopped overnight once in a hotel or motel.)

To a casual visitor, Mrs. Rowntree presents a perplexity: Why would anyone living where she does ever want to travel anywhere? Her rambling cottage home flowers on one of the picturesque tors just south of Wildcat Creek. Above and around her the terrain is yellow with monkeyflower, gray-green with chaparral and blue with wild blue geranium.

A living lesson in ecology herself, the lady botanist fits into these surroundings most harmoniously, with her customary attire of slacks and shirt, plainly suited to rough going, and her earned the color of tanbark.

Surely no one ever came more honestly by an occupation than Mrs. Rowntree, who was born in Penrith, Cumberland, England, in the Lake District which is of course, Wordsworth's country.

As a bride of an American businessman, she later made history in Oradell, New Jersey, by becoming the first female in town to wear slacks. A recent visitor told her that her atypical behavior there as a commuter's wife along with her consuming preoccupation with gardening and the outdoors, had made her a legend in the little town on the Erie Railroad.

She came to the Carmel area in 1920 and it is from here that she conducted most of her botanical business and wrote all of her books, which include Hardy Californians (MacMillan), Flowering Shrubs of California (Stanford University Press), Ronnie Ronnie and I (and Little Tucker and I).

The last three publications are juvenile fiction, written especially for her three grandchildren whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Rowntree of Berkeley.

A third book on horticulture went unpublished when Mrs. Rowntree's field notes, along with her nursery, storehouse and equipment, were destroyed by fire several years ago.

Misfortune overtook Mrs. Rowntree again more recently when an accident during a field trip and subsequent difficulty with a detached retina caused some six months of blindness, and lost her much time in her work. She has dauntlessly retaliated by learning to typewrite and now has plans for "about twelve more" children's books.

About youngsters she says, "Children should be allowed to climb mountains if they want to. The main difficulty is that too often they're not even allowed to want to."

Obviously, her books for youngsters abound with nature lore.

For people, either adults or children, who would like to try the back-packing therapy she so heartily recommends, she has listed these suggestions:

1. Take advantage of the dehydrated food available in most sporting goods stores. It is easy to carry, and very nutritious.

2. Keep bedding and extra clothing at a minimum. Strive to acclimate yourself to temperature extremes rather than carrying extra weight. It won't take long. ("Once in the Sierra my shelter blew away in a high wind and I was plastered head to foot with frozen sleet. Yet the only times I have ever caught cold are when I come back to town and expose myself to other people's bacteria.") No air mattresses. Learn to sleep on the ground.

3. But don't forget the obvious, some thin waterproof garment if you don't like being wet.

4. Wear sturdy jeans and shoes with rubber soles. Leather is inclined to skid on rocks.

5. If you choose a companion, be sure it's someone you know is congenial, someone who doesn't mind being quiet and being alone. ("I usually go alone because such people are so scarce. Also many people are scared of bears and snakes.")

6. Choose a rewarding area to explore. California has many. (For wild flower collecting, she suggested the Channel Islands off Santa Barbara. She used to pack her camera, seed bags and collecting paraphernalia, hire a fisherman to take her to the islands, and ask him to return for her in three weeks.)

7. Go with the idea that you are not superior to nature, but part of it. Be friendly to your surroundings and they will be friendly to you.

But as a word of advice on the foregoing advice: Don't expect these things to be too easily accomplished. It would take, most of us some time to learn to be like Mrs. Rowntree, one who is genuinely at peace with herself and the world.

Herbert Myers To Give Piano Recital Sunday

Gilbert Boyer, Director of the Carmel Studios of Music, presents his student Herbert Myers in the fifth and final piano recital of this season's series in the Ball Room of the U. S. Naval Post Graduate School at 4:30 on Sunday. The public is invited to attend.

Myers, a Monterey High School sophomore, will play the Bach Sixth French Suite, Schumann Romance, and Grieg, Chopin and Grieg Nocturnes, The Cat and the Mouse by the American composer Copland, Malaguena by Lecuona, Bulgarian Dances of Bartok and Prelude of Gershwin.

Myers started his training with Dr. Constance Shirley and her mother in Hollywood. Later, after moving to the Monterey Peninsula, his mother Mrs. Myers, now well-known piano teacher in this area, taught him for several years. For the last three years he has been studying with Gilbert Boyer.

Herbie Myers plays bass clarinet in the Monterey High School Senior Band and violin in the orchestra. In addition to his interest in acoustics and in baroque instruments, including the playing of recorders, he also has several piano students and a clarinet student.

His father, also Herbert Myers, is an electrical engineer teaching at the U. S. Naval Post Graduate School. His mother has been active in music and teaching music since she was 16 years of age.

This week in his spare time he is helping his parents move to their new home in South Carmel Hills.

NO DECISION ON CHAIN STORES

After several hours of discussion at an adjourned meeting Monday night, the Carmel City Council could reach no agreement on what action could be taken, or if any action were desirable, in discouraging chain stores from establishing themselves in Carmel. Councilman Gunnar Norberg's motion that the city clerk be authorized to write letters to chain store applicants for business licenses, informing them that they are not wanted in Carmel, died for want of a second.

Following another lengthy discussion, a committee of Councilmen—James Buffington, Gunnar Norberg, State Forester John C. Dowdakin and Planning Commission member Herbert Blanks was appointed to study Mr. Norberg's

Peter Rodriguez Has One Man Show At Studio Theatre

Royden Martin of The Studio Theatre, where 8 and Run, the new musical revue is being performed, is playing host in his theatre art gallery to young artist Peter Rodriguez of Stockton.

Rodriguez is showing a group of oils, casin, tempera, and ink drawings in the theatre lobby and throughout the theatre 1:00 to 5:00 o'clock daily, and from 1:00 until 10:30 o'clock on performance nights, Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays.

Rodriguez is a member of the San Francisco Art Association, Stockton Art League, and has had several one man shows including one at Gump's and Lucien Labaudt in San Francisco, the State Museum in Guadalajara, Mexico, the Crocker Art Gallery in Sacramento, and the Haagin Gallery in Stockton. Last year San Jose State College held an invitational showing of his paintings for west coast artists.

In feeling Rodriguez paints in the mode of abstract expressionism. His show will run throughout August at The Studio Theatre, Dolores between Ocean and Seventh.

BRIDGE CONSTRUCTION STARTS AT WHITE CREEK NEXT MONTH

Bids have been awarded for the construction of a steel plate girder bridge on Highway 1 across White Creek, about 15 miles south of Lucia. Work starts in the middle of August and should be completed in November.

The new bridge will have a laminated timber deck about 81 feet long with a road width of 14 feet. Upon completion of a traffic detour around the work, the existing log stringer bridge will be removed and the new bridge built in its place.

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone Press. Dial Carmel MA 4-3881.

Yvonne Winslow Here

Mrs. Yvonne Winslow of Berkeley spent last weekend at the Rocky Creek Association cabin on Long Ridge which divides Bixby and Palo Colorado canyons. Her son, Garth, is studying Spanish at the University of Mexico. He expects to enroll at San Francisco State College as a music and language student in the fall. Garth attended Bay and Carmel High Schools before graduating from Verde Valley School in Arizona two years ago.

Bach Festival Reviews...

BY MARY-LINDSAY OLIVER

The lecture at the Woman's Club by Lawrence Morton, Wednesday morning, on Some Aspects of Baroque Music was well attended. Introduced by Miss Denny as Director of the Ojai Valley Festival and Monday Evening Concerts in Los Angeles, his interesting analytical and somewhat technical statements were interspersed with information on the various treatments and developments by Bach and other Baroque composers; the mathematical calculations, figured basses and general construction of their compositions, including some of those performed, and musical interpretation of the meaning of words used. He gave several illustrations at the piano, including a florid form of the old tune to God Save the King and My Country 'tis of Thee, and was applauded for his comprehensive and scholarly discourse.

THURSDAY MORNING

The first Chamber Music program crammed the clubhouse and presented a variety of works by Vivaldi, Weckmann, Ariosti, Leclair and Bach. The program opened with Sonata No. 5 in E minor for cello and piano continuo by Vivaldi, Jean Fulkerson a native of Carmel, and many times a player in the Festival, together with her husband Charles Fulkerson, who is Conductor of the Humboldt State Symphony Orchestra and also a former player in the Bach Festival, gave a well played performance of the four movements. An unusual combination of instruments followed in the Weckmann Sonata with Barbara Brown, violin; John Kolarik, trombone, Edward Haug, trumpet; Fred Dutton, bassoon; Jean Fulkerson, cello and Gilbert Boyer, piano. Its somewhat blatant effect was strange and probably a tonal experiment of the 17th century. The Ariosti Lesson 2 in A major for Viola d'Amore with Marie James and Charles Fulkerson was a happy return to softer accord and nuance. A second duet followed the Leclair Sonata in D major, with violinist Rosemary Waller and Boyer playing the piano continuo. Its four interesting movements as Adagio, Allegro, Saraband and Tamborin brought forth an ovation for the gifted leader of the Festival Orchestra, now a member of the National Symphony in Washington under Howard Mitchell. Gilbert Boyer's accompanying in this was reserved and adequate. The final Bach Quartet No. 1 in C major for clarinet, violin, viola and cello was a pleasing combination of Richard Waller's finely played clarinet, Mary James' viola, Rosemary Waller's violin and Mary Jane Bemko's cello, which rounded out the morning concert.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON

Ludwig Altman's second organ recital, played twice at the Wayfarer, carried out in part the historic contest at Leipzig for the post of Thomas Cantor, decided by the mayor and councilors, who passed over Bach in favor of Telemann and Graupner, neither of whom could accept the post. It fell to Bach who was then considered but a "mediocre" candidate. It was nevertheless fortunate that Bach filled the appointment, even under so condescendingly ignorant a designation, for which the burghers were scolded, but which Bach's work completely obliterated. Altman played six chorale preludes by Telemann and a Suite with five movements by Graupner, then Six Chorale Preludes, a Prelude and Double Fugue in C minor and the Organ Chorale Thy Throne I Now Approach, Bach's last composition, which Altman also played two seasons ago on the temporary stage organ at Sunset. It all clearly showed the more profound and greater composer of the three, and we believe Carmel is the only place this historic fact has been illustrated, as Ludwig Altman told me he had never before presented it. Fortunate it is that the Wayfarer organ is adequate for this famous organist's fine performances.

THURSDAY EVENING

Bach's Overture No. 3 in D major containing the aria so enjoyed as the previous evening's encore, surprised many with its happy gavottes, Bouree and Gigue, dispelling, one hopes, the mistaken common notion that Bach is always profound and difficult to understand. Nothing could have been more joyous than the dance movements given in spirited playing by Salgo and the Orchestra. Roberta and Colin Sterne with Recorder and Baroque Flute delighted everyone with four movements of a Telemann Concerto in E minor. Their playing is in complete co-ordination and so thoroughly musical and artistic that they deserved and received strong acclaim. Lillian Steuber, famous pianist of the west and oft-times with the Festival, played three movements of the Mozart Concerto in E flat major with clarity and rhythm. An innovation for the Festival then took place with Lully's Dance Suite arranged by Felix Mottl, bringing Jenny Hunter's Dancers — Mary Gould Van Seiver, Chloe Scott, Betty Rasser and herself to interpret the four movements. Without any stereotyped forms their free contortions among the pillars on the stage made one think of Druid maidens flitting through the ancient ruins of Stonehenge. It was charming, and we hope for more dancing in future festivals.

FRIDAY MORNING

Roberta and Colin Sterne, in a most interesting recital and exhibit of Baroque instruments and music from the 14th to the 18th century at the Woman's Club, drew a packed house. The virginals, recorders, harpsichord, lute, flute and an instrument like a bent walking stick called a cromorne held rapt attention throughout their hour of fascinating old melodies by Leclair, Arcadelt, Carr, Byrd, Bull, Dalza, Bologna and G. F. Handel, many of them, Colin Sterne explained, often not fully written out or designated for any one instrument. The recital was most instructive and unique and many of the audience lingered to inspect the instruments and ask questions. Ernest Dolmetsch, now gone, whose family today holds a yearly festival for old music and instruments at Hazelmere in the English Lake country, was the first to revive interest which has gained great momentum everywhere today. The strange cromorne was a product of the 14th Century and its tone unlike any other known instrument in use. The Sternes' manipulation of all was clever and musical.

FRIDAY EVE

The popular Raymond Duste appeared in a Concerto for Oboe and Orchestra. Its three movements were played in his masterly manner with an excellent orchestra back of him, and he was recalled again and again with Salgo. A Dramatic Cantata, Saul and The Witch at Endor, by Purcell, with harpsichord realization by Hazelle Thomas, brought Margery MacKay, mezzo, the witch; Saul, Leonard Weeks, tenor; and Samuel, Tom Paul, bass, with several members of the Festival chorus. It was a typical example of Purcell's logical writing to fit the meaning of words, and all the soloists made it interesting, and dramatic. Its story is in the 28th chapter of 1st Samuel. Eva Heinitz with the Viola da Gamba was welcomed warmly and proceeded to play a Tartini Concerto in D major with Orchestra. Her mastery of the ancient instrument, forerunner of the cello, stands out among virtuosos and brought an ovation. The Festival Chorus in Lasso's Tristest anima mea, a Motet for a Capella chorus, was another example of words set to a meaningful utterance in sentiment. The second half of the program was given to Lillian Steuber whose playing of the Bach Fantasy and Fugue in A minor, three of the

21st Annual Bach Festival Reviews

Three Part Inventions and Partita No. 4 in D major added to her laurels of the previous evening and she was again and again recalled, for she charms her audience, both in playing and person.

SATURDAY MORNING

The Second Chamber Music Recital presented a Bach Sonata in G major for two flutes delightfully played by Sheridan Stokes and Paul Robison with Ralph Linsley at the harpsichord and Eugene Wilson, cellist, in the continuo. James Schwabacher followed this with three arias from John Blow's Musical Bouquet and three from another collection by the same 16th Century composer. Always a popular Festival participant, he sang all in his lyric tenor to Linsley's harpsichord accompaniment. A Weckmann Sonata was then given by the same unusual combination of instruments and players heard on Thursday, with Lawrence Lesser, cellist, in the continuo with Linsley. The two movements came out somewhat less harshly than the first work by the same composer, who must have liked the combination to repeat it! The Viola da Gamba in the hands of Eva Heinitz speaks from the strong mastery she maintains over it, for she repeated her virtuoso playing of last year and the previous evening with the orchestra and responded to insistent demand with an extra number after the Abel Sonata in G minor which was preceded by two unaccompanied pieces by d'Hervelois.

One of the most satisfying singers we have had in the Festivals is Cora Burt Lauridsen, whose lovely contralto tone and feeling were present in the Ode on the death of Henry Purcell by John Blow, Chapel Master of Westminster Abbey, who resigned in favor of his protegee Purcell. Blow's perpetuation of English polyphonic music continued with his return to Westminster after Purcell's untimely death. Carole Sickinger, contralto, sang with Lauridsen while Roberta and Colin Sterne's recorders, with Linsley and Lesser, supplied the continuo. Colin Sterne gave explanations on the Ode composed by the 17th century John Dryden. Given last year, it was a welcome repeat and a fitting climax to the Chamber group program.

SATURDAY EVE

Introduzione, Aria and Presto for String Orchestra by 17th century Marcello, a contemporary of Vivaldi, received a stirring rendering at the hands of Salgo and the string players, who all through the concerts have shown an excellent quality of string tone, particularly the first violinists. Salgo, as usual, showed his appreciation of their combined effort.

Maxim Schapiro, returning immediately from his recital of American Music in Europe played but one movement of the Mozart Coronation Concerto when he was obliged to request a moment's absence, from which he never returned, and passed on suddenly minutes later. It was a shock and loss to his audience, but an ideal way for a musician to go. His fine art will be a loss to the musical world.

It had always been both Usigli's and Denny's desire to incorporate opera into the Festival and through Salgo's successful presentation of the Arne Dramatic Pastoral Thomas and Sally at Stanford University it was ready-made for the second half of Saturday night's program. The Stanford cast consisted of Edward Dunning as the amorous Squire and Marilyn Poppino as the love-sick Sally whose lover Thomas, Byron Mellberg, returns from the sea. While Dorcas, Donna Petersen, consoles Sally and finally returns to her errant husband, the Squire, much comedy occurred with dancers and arrival of the ship, with sailors and dancers as chorus, including Ralph Heidsieck, Tom Paul, James Witt, Merwyn Dant, Chloe Scott and Betty Risser. Produced by Kenneth Waters, with choreography by Jenny Hunter and Mary Gould Van Sciver, it delighted the audience. The English libretto by Isaac Bickerstaff naturally included the sea and as one of the first comic operas after The Beggar's Opera in 1728 clearly laid the pattern enlarged in time by Gilbert and Sullivan. Voices, singing and acting of all were on an excellent standard with real acting genius from Donna Petersen. We hope more Arne operas will be given in future.

SUNDAY

The climax of the Festival, which last year was two performances of the St. Matthew's Passion, this year was the St. John's Passion given to two full houses. Unlike the St. Matthew's, the St. John's does not include the last supper or the agony in the garden but emphasizes the trial of Jesus before Pilate. Salgo necessarily cut it, but enough dialogue appeared in the program for the listener to follow. Before the performance, Dene Denny announced that it would be dedicated to the memory of Maxim Schapiro, who passed away so suddenly Friday night after playing one movement of the Mozart Concerto, and who had long been devoted to the Festival. This, together with the intense attitude of all who took part and the significance of the silences between arias and choruses created an atmosphere of reverence which I have seldom experienced so strongly in a religious musical work.

James Schwabacher, as the Evangelist, carried his solo part with feeling and distinction. Stanley Noonan, as Jesus, would have done better with less reserve of voice though his attitude was expressive. Leonard Wecks' tenor was effective, but Gert Muser's baritone had been heard to better advantage. Marie Gibson in the soprano role and Cora Burt Lauridsen, contralto, both delivered their solos with distinction. Merwyn Dant, a bass of deep quality was telling as Pilate. Del Fahrney was heard as Peter, Nancy Foster as the Maid, and Robert Faris as a Servant. Too much praise cannot be given the chorus, many of whom had previously sung the work. Their tone, dynamics and precise response to Conductor Salgo was of the best. Indeed, they might have been a hundred instead of only about fifty voices. All was supported by the excellent playing of the orchestra in which Eva Heinitz's interlude on the Viola da Gamba was a moment of beauty. Raymond Duste's oboe, Sheridan Stokes' and Paula Robinson's flutes, Philip Kates' English horn, Mary James' Viola d'Amore, Germain Prevost, viola; Colin Sterne's lute with Ludwig Altman at the Hammond organ; Ralph Linsley, harpsichord; Eugene Wilson, cello; and Suzanne Ailman, contrabass, all assisted the vibrant strings led by Rosemary Waller, in an outstanding performance that cannot be forgotten. The applause and thanks of the audience was given to all when Dene Denny and chorus assistants, Angie Machado and Gilbert Boyer, appeared in the final line with the soloists, though Sandor Salgo was the brilliant star of the whole Festival.

To many Californians, a glass of beer means light refreshment—it's their favorite beverage. Beer "belongs"—especially to our relaxed, outdoor living in California.

But to the nearly 8,000 men and women in California directly engaged in the Brewing Industry, a glass of beer means more than a light refreshment. To these Californians, a glass of beer stands for their livelihood. Beer belongs to California prosperity.

How to do it better with WATER

THE WATER CURE FOR SPOTS AND SPILLS

Water alone, or with small amounts of inexpensive chemicals added, makes an effective cleaning agent. Many small spot removing jobs are better done with water than fancy spot and stain removers. Stains caused by alcoholic beverages, soft drinks and fresh black coffee can be removed by soaking or sponging the garment with cool water. Follow this treatment with a warm suds rinse. Fruit, gravy and ice cream stains can be treated in the same manner.

Water is one of man's most useful cleaning agents. But before you use it, water itself must be as safe as man can make it. It may look clear and sparkling, and yet not ready to drink. To assure you of safe water we maintain a constant inspection and testing program. When you turn on a water tap, you know the water supplied you by California Water & Telephone Company meets all public drinking water standards.

SHOP IN CARMEL

One of the advantages of shopping in Carmel—and there are many—is that here there is collected merchandise far from the banal imports, the original in jewelry and handcrafts, high fashion, advance modes, forward-looking equipment for home, entertaining, gardening.

Those who keep shops in Carmel are special people. Often their backgrounds are impressive in accomplishment, educational and cultural advantages. They are here because they have the discrimination to like Carmel, to appreciate its unique qualities, its freedom from the trite. To their charming little shops, their smart specialty stores, they bring this connoisseur touch—advantages to those of us who live here, who realize, too, that the dollar spent at home comes back to us in many ways.

The Time Has Come.

By Kippy Stuart

Do you own your own home? Is your property paid for in full and you consider yourself sole owner? No greater fallacy exists, for no one actually "Owns" his own land. But, we protest, "My property deed is in my safe deposit box and is registered in the county annals." This is the answer I gave to an old philosopher who posed this question to me. In fact, I took him to task as being a silly old somebody. Of course, I owned my own home.

As I sat listening to this old philosopher, I began to wonder, for he fired such a barrage of questions at me that I all but staggered beneath his assault. Slowly, and methodically he took me back through the years. He asked: "Who owned your acre in Hatton Fields, before you did?" Innocently, I replied, "The land company that sold the property to me." The old gentleman kept probing and probing, taking me back to time long past. Finally he floored me by asking,

"Who lived on your acre fifty years ago . . . one hundred years ago, a thousand years ago!" I held up my hand and cried, "Kamerad! Kamerad!" He didn't even chuckle, he just scolded on and on. Finally, in desperation, I almost jellied, "Indians, I suppose."

His comment was succinct for he said irrelevantly, "Where are the roses of yesteryear?"

To bring this discussion into focus, the old gentleman was trying to make me see my grave responsibility. I suddenly remembered that either the Bible or Shakespeare, or somebody big had admonished,

"Where you find one blade of grass growing, go you and make two blades of grass grow." And then, I began to understand my old philosopher. He was trying to tell me that instead of actually owning my property I was merely a tenant upon the land, the caretaker for generations to come. It was my responsibility to improve every foot of my property, not only for my own gratification, but for the good of generations to come. You know, that "Long look" that philosophers are endowed with, and, believe me, the old gentleman shook me up considerably. When he had left my garden I sat musing on his theories. Maybe he was right! Maybe I was only a tenant on my own land . . . maybe it was my responsibility to make that second blade of grass grow.

Ever since this conversation with this wise man I have been asking myself, "Who will live in this house, or dwell on this land say, in fifty years . . . one hundred years, on . . . on . . . to the thousandth numeral! I was feeling very lazy that day and had decided to skip garden chores. Echoes of the old voice came back to me, . . . your responsibilities . . ." I jumped up, took my hose in hand and watered that one blade of grass . . .

Welcome back, Kippy. I applaud your spirit in watering that blade of grass though I doubt it will be there 100 years from now. Which raises the question, what will be on Kippy's acre in Hatton Fields at the edge of the Mesa, overlooking Mission Fields and Carmel Bay in the year 2058? The Pine Cone will give $5.00 worth of garden hose for the best answer, confined to 200 words or less. Kippy Stuart shall be the judge. Send your entries to Kippy Stuart, Garden Editor, the Carmel Pine Cone, Box G-1, Carmel, California.

If you can prove you have a garden hose in good condition, you may take your prize in a subscription to the Pine Cone or in $5.00 in U. S. Currency.

Maxim Schapiro

Internationally famous pianist Maxim Schapiro died on Saturday evening of a heart attack minutes after he walked off the stage of Sunset Auditorium at the end of the first movement of Mozart's Coronation concerto which he was playing with the 21st Bach Festival Orchestra.

Conductor Sandor Salgo was waiting for the signal to begin the second movement when Mr. Schapiro spoke to him, then walked into the wings. Mr. Salgo followed and returned within a few minutes to announce to the audience there would be a short intermission. Shortly after leaving the stage Mr. Schapiro collapsed.

A Carmel Volunteer Fire Department member on duty at Sunset Auditorium summoned the Red Cross ambulance operated by department members. Mr. Schapiro's personal physician and the official Bach Festival physician were called from the audience. They administered treatment but Mr. Schapiro died before reaching the Peninsula Community Hospital.

Maxim Schapiro was born in Russia at Saratov on the Volga River 59 years ago. His career took him all over the world on concert tours in Europe, the Orient and North and South America. Two weeks ago he left Europe to come to Carmel to play in the Bach Festival for the tenth time after completing his sixth post-war European tour on July 1. During this tour Maxim Schapiro was enthusiastically acclaimed in Italy, France, the Scandinavian countries and Holland. He was guest artist in Paris with Orchestre National, conducted by Manuel Rosenthal, in the first European performance of a concerto by the Brazilian composer Carmargo Guarnieri, and played a concert of American music at the World Fair in Brussels. He also did extensive recording work in Paris.

His tenth Bach Festival performance on Saturday evening was his first appearance here after four years absence because of other engagements.

He is survived by his wife, Jane Eddy, a cellist. She was with him at the time of his death. They made their permanent home in Mill Valley.

Private funeral services were held on Monday in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea Crematorium. In accordance with his wishes, his ashes will be buried in Japan where he spent many professionally happy years.

The Sunday afternoon and evening Festival performances of Bach's Passion According to Saint John were dedicated to Maxim Schapiro's memory.

Three Art Expressions Employed In Tribute To Gastone Usigli

Arts in Triple Harness was the comprehensive and intriguing title given to co-ordinated paintings, poetry and music in a memorial of beauty to Gastone Usigli, long time conductor of the Bach Festival, sponsored and presented with a few appropriate words by Mary Louise Schneeberger at the Golden Bough Theatre Saturday afternoon. The paintings were by 28 local artists of distinction and were projected on a screen from photographs taken by Wynn Bullock. With each came over the loud speaker the voice of Eric Barker, famous poet of Big Sur, in lines from his poetry and from Robinson Jeffers', appropriate to the paintings, which were personally selected by Mrs. Schneeberger for this timely tribute to the distinguished musician who did so much to build up the Bach Festival.

Pictures were projected during the playing of a record of Usigli's tone poem, Prometheus Unbound, played by the Wiener Konzertvereinigung in Vienna, conducted by Charles Adler, and a second symphonic poem, Humanitas.

In synchronizing these arts, possible today as never before through development of recording, photography and color projection the clever sponsor has started something new in form here, and Carmel can thank her for the fitting program in Bach week. Its beauty appealing in each art expression.

The Gaston Usigli Memorial Foundation has been created for the purpose of recording the Maestro's compositions as funds are contributed. The records, though not for general sale, can be obtained by a contribution of $5.00, through Mrs. Mausita Jennings at the Browse Around Music Shop. Prometheus Unbound is full of the sounds of the sea, the work of a musician whose knowledge and creative genius stamp him through this work as a fine composer. The form, Symphonic Poem, has seldom so thoroughly fulfilled its exacting title. The Humanitas is also filled with strong orchestral writing and tonal beauty. Those who acquire the records have a treasure in tone construction, to listen to at any time.

Artists whose paintings were shown in color transparency included Louise Cardeiro Boyer, S. C. Yuan, Zita Laky, Marjorie Doolittle, Marlinde Von Ruffs, Doris Rohr, Elwood Graham, Richard Lofton, Abel Warshawsky, Don Bloom, Sam Harris, Rip Matteson, Jane Buffington, Sam Colburn, Al Need and Leo Braico.

Years Ago Is Next At Circle Theatre

Broadway actress Ruth Gordon is the author of the Golden Bough Circle Theatre's next production, slated to open August 1. The play, entitled Years Ago, concerns Miss Gordon's early days in Wollaston, Massachusetts, and ends with her departure for New York to go on the stage. Written when the star was in her forties, the role of Ruth Gordon Jones was played on Broadway by Patricia Kirkland, and will be done here by Sylvia Kightly.

In Years Ago, Miss Gordon exercises her warm sense of humor on memories of her gruff, seafaring father, who considered physical culture the ideal career for a girl just out of high school. Her mother, who hoped she might marry a Harvard boy, is also de-

Grace Rosenthal presents Mariano Cordoba (above) and Carmen Ruiz in a concert of Flamenco music and dance at Sunset Auditorium Saturday night at 8:15 o'clock.

Born in Guadalajara, Castile, Spain, Mariano Cordoba began his guitar playing at the age of fourteen. Shortly thereafter his family moved to Madrid where he was able to study with the great masters Rafael Nogales and Eugenio Gonzalez.

His rapid progress brought attention from some of the leading Flamenco singers and dancers of the day and while still in his late picted with a amused affection. Fredric March and Florence Eldridge originated the roles of the parents, perplexed by a daughter whose one craving is for fame.

Carmelites will be able to see Miss Gordon's comedy on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings following the run of the current Circle Theatre hit, The Reluctant Debutante, which closes July 27.

teens he began to accompany several of them on their professional tours as guitarist.

Among the artists with whom he was associated in Spain were the singers Antonio Molina and Antonio Mairena and the dancers Maria Martin, Paco Torres, Flora Albaicin, Rafael Cruz and, more recently, four years with the Antonio and Rosario Company with which he toured Europe, South America and North America.

Mariano Cordoba has a large group of students in the Bay Area who are mastering the intricacies of Flamenco playing under his guidance.

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone Press. Dial Carmel MA 4-3881.

George Gann To Wed On Albatros

George Gann, older son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest K. Gann of Pebble Beach, flies to Copenhagen on August 16 and on August 19 will be married aboard his father's ship, the Albatros, to Karen Galassi, daughter of Mrs. Corrado Galassi of Rome. The wedding setting will be a small harbor near Copenhagen, selected by the bride after she arrives in Denmark. Karen graduated from Radcliffe College, Harvard University, in June.

At present George is in San Francisco taking Coast Guard examinations for a third mate's rating. A Carmel High School graduate, he has completed his training at the California Maritime Academy and, after his marriage, will be assigned, as an ensign, to two years' Naval Reserve duty. He and his bride will honeymoon for two weeks in Edinburgh before flying the Polar route home to Carmel to visit George's mother.

Mrs. Gann will not be at her son's marriage as she is expecting Simon Wadleigh to arrive from London on August 10. Simon is Carmel High School's American Field Service foreign exchange student for this year and will be the guest of the Gann family during his stay in the United States.

Simon has already met Mr. Gann, his "father" for the year, and his "brother" Steven Gann, also Deen Rowe. The three boys will be Carmel High School senior classmates. They met in England after Mr. Gann sailed the Albatros up the Thames to London. Both the Carmel boys are crew members on the Albatros which left New York harbor to cross the Atlantic early in June. Steven and Deen will fly home in time for school opening.

Before they leave, however, Mr. Gann will take the Albatros to the Swedish seacoast village of Tjvickil, Lycke to see his daughter Polly. She is spending the summer there with a Swedish family as Carmel High School's representative in the American Field Service exchange student program.

Schlepps London Bound

On the back of a postcard picturing a birch and conifer surrounded lake, former staff member Katie Schlepp informs the Pine Cone she is sailing on the Ile de France on September 10 with her husband, Wayne, to live in England.

Since leaving Carmel a year ago, the Schlepps have been living in Perham, Minnesota, where Wayne was a teacher. Recently, Katie reports, they had a visit from Pine Cone linotype operator Adele Deffert and her husband, Lance, who are spending the summer in the lake country near the Schlepps' home.

Francis Is Feeling Fine

Everybody, including the citizens who have been his dearest enemies in political fights, was happy to see Francis Whitaker striding around town Monday, well and smiling.

He is just out of hospital after an operation to relieve disc pressure on a nerve that has been causing him acute pain periodically for nine years. He says he is feeling so well that all of his future contacts with the city council, as leader of the citizens' loyal opposition, will be conducted in the spirit of sweetness and togetherness.

Karen Lynn Matteson Born

Dr. and Mrs. Donald Matteson (Sunny Cook) have two children, a boy and a girl, since the birth of their daughter, Karen Lynn, in Wilmington, Delaware, on July 18. Karen's brother, Eric, is 19 months old. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cook of Carmel and Mr. and Mrs. Steven Matteson of Chico.

Karen's birth adds a second girl to the three boys proudly discussed by members of the Pine Cone Staff Grandparents Club. Her birth weight was seven pounds, two and a half ounces.

The Matteson family leave Delaware at the end of the summer to live in Pullman, Washington. Dr. Matteson, now a research chemist for Dupont in Wilmington, joins the faculty of Washington State College as a chemistry professor after the move.

HARMONY

*How often do dissociated strands
Of sound seem incomplete if heard alone,
Then, interblent with other rhythmic bands,
Acquire a new canorousness of tone?
Unknown were diadems of the seas
Did rippling sheath not merge with undersong,
And wind is a naked cry until the trees
Yield their susurrs as he flows along.*

*A single man may, standing up to sing,
Stir little music in the south or north,
But trio, quintet or quartet can bring
From each such complementary beauty forth
As if the gods of harmony, by choice,

HIGH FOG

*Since dawn a dove-gray curtain veils the sky,
Shading to misty blue at the horizon.
The sea, gray too, seems breathing quietly
As does the stirless air. This is a day
For calmness, quiet contemplation;
A waiting day. The heart needs days like this
To find itself again and to renew
Acquaintance with serenity and peace,
So gaining strength to face the feverish days,
Mammon's hard glitter and the stress of life.*

—ELLEN SUTHERLAND.

BACH CHORALE

*This music, not made but created,
Leaps into life, springs up like flame
Quick and unstaying,
Bright with immediate freshness.*

*Touch the light bow to the string
Lend voice to the cantata—
What swift vitality ensues!
Sparkles with fire,
Weaves its own syseries,
Leaps and illumines,
Ends but does not die.*

—DORA HAGEMEYER.

40 NEW CAMP SITES READY AT BIG SUR

The camp development at Big Sur State Park was completed this week, consisting of 40 additional camp sites with related sanitary facilities and roads.

But, "because of the popularity of the area, there are still not enough facilities for everyone, and campers may still have to wait a day or two before they can be assigned a camp site," says Wayne Cox, assistant district superintendent.

There are several private campgrounds in the vicinity where campers may stay while they wait to get into the State Park. Time limit in the state park is ten days during the summer months.

Miss Gail Maitre who was selected as Miss Pacific Grove in a recent contest will be crowned Queen Topaz to rule the Feast of Lanterns Celebration July 26-27 in Pacific Grove. Here she is examining some of the articles that will be used in the colorful oriental fete.

SCOUT ROAD TO CAMP PICO BLANCO DEDICATED

Supervisor Thomson Jay Hudson of Point Lobos yesterday afternoon was master of ceremonies at the dedication of the new access road through primitive country to Camp Pico Blanco Scout Reservation on the north fork of the Little Sur River.

During ceremonies at the camp, State Senator Fred Farr of Carmel gave one dedication address. Assemblyman Alan G. Pattee the other. E. M. Seifert Jr. of Carmel presented awards and recognitions and Robert E. Ross of Carmel made the closing speech. Mr. Seifert and Mr. Ross represented the Boy Scouts of America.

Camp Pico Blanco may now be reached in an hour from Carmel by travelling south on Highway One to Palo Colorado Canyon, then along the canyon for ten miles to Boucher's Gap. The camp is four miles beyond the Gap on the floor of the north fork of Little Sur River, in wild country previously inaccessible by car.

READ THE CLASSIFIED ADS*... Churches ...*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

Fulfillment of Jesus' promise "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John 8:32) is a present-day possibility. This is a theme to be brought out in Christian Science services Sunday.

Scriptural texts and correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy comprise the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Truth." Among the selections from Science and Health will be read following (312:17-19, 24-26): "Mortals try to believe without understanding Truth, yet God is Truth."

A personal sense of God and of man's capabilities necessarily limits faith and hinders spiritual understanding.

The Golden Text is from Psalms (25:5): "Lead me in thy truth, and teach me: for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day."

Pfeiffer, Full Of Woe, May Seek Annexation To Carmel School

cannot belong to a Monterey Unified School District, with Carmel in between is something perhaps the County Counselor can explain. Anyway, its the law. However, they can annex to Carmel Unified School District, and if Monterey does do this thing, then Palo Colorado, without a high school connection, will have an urgent reason for annexing to Carmel, and Pfeiffer will be able to build within the boundaries of what is now the Palo Colorado District. As usual, it all depends on Monterey.

The county committee for school district organization has chosen Carmel for their next meeting place because they want to ask: Monterey if it is serious about forming a unified school district; Palo Colorado how it feels about all this; Carmel if it would accept the two down coast districts, should they wish to annex. Carmel school board has sole power to accept or reject. The county committee has power to recommend annexation to the state board of education but the county board of supervisors can say no, and probably would, if Carmel school board doesn't want Pfeiffer and Palo Colorado.

If Pfeiffer and Palo Colorado want to annex and Carmel school board says they will accept them, then an election would be held in the Palo Colorado and Pfeiffer Districts but not in Carmel. The procedure is much the same as was followed in the Carmel Valley annexation to the Carmel district this winter, with the exception that the valley action was initiated by citizen's petition.

In this case, the county committee probably would initiate action.

The county committee of school district organization, formerly the county re-districting committee, is a board of eleven members selected from various sections of the county. Local members are: David B. Hoisington, chairman, Carmel Valley; Lorin Smith and Stanley Greeb, Monterey. Others are: Francis Paul, Salinas; James Abelo, Spreckles; Foster Hutchings, Pajaro; Paul Rubis, Moss Landing, and from Salinas Valley and the southern portion of the county: Arthur Durante, Ray Gleason and Michel Orradre. —Wilma Cook.

POLICE MATTERS

An employee at Blums on Ocean Avenue carried a lot of money in her purse which she left lying around the kitchen. Over a period of four weeks, $780 disappeared. A week ago she asked the Carmel Police to investigate. They advised marked bills. Tuesday, they "detained for questioning" Walter Reed, Seaside, dishwasher at Blum's, and found marked bills in his possession. Reed, charged with grand larceny and arraigned in Monterey Municipal Court Wednesday morning, was held to answer in superior court in Salinas on July 28. Bail was set at $2000, but Reed is still in custody.

James Lee Scott of Salt Lake City, five and a half years old, was shopping with his mother at Womble's Pharmacy Wednesday morning when he decided to return to their car on the other side of Ocean Avenue. He darted into the street and ran into a car driven by Mrs. Myra Mylar. Bruised but apparently otherwise unhurt, he was taken to the hospital for a checkup.

Janet Krieger's bike is still missing. If you see a black and white, girls' J. C. Higgins 26, license number 210, please inform the police. Janet left the bike in the car port at her home on the East side of San Antonio, South of Eleventh, at 9:00 o'clock in the evening, June 22. It was gone the following morning. Police were notified, but the bike has not turned up in somebody else's back yard, as is usual in such cases.

Planning Commission; receive a report that non-conforming signs in the windows of Womble's Pharmacy had been removed; and to ask City Clerk Larry Rose to write letters to both the County Road Department and the State Highway Department requesting that representatives of these two bodies meet soon with Carmel planning commissioners to solve the traffic ingress and egress problem resulting from a proposed freeway inter-desire or if it is asked. Variance may be as much as two parking spaces or 15 per cent of the required parking space for a motel or other multiple dwelling building.

In addition to the land required for off-street parking, the ordinance amendment requires a driveway providing access to the parking area, and a service area for the keeping of garbage receptacles. The rest of the 400 square feet open space per unit must be landscaped.

The Board of Adjustments may permit some of this landscaping area to be used for walkways and other like improvements closely allied to the basic structure of the building.

The city council sent the interim zoning ordinance amendment to the planning commission asking rapid action and stating, in a preamble, that the transient population of Carmel has increased to an alarming degree and shows signs of progressively increasing. The council is seeking to regulate, through the 60-40 land use ratio, the existing traffic burden within Carmel and the burden upon the street, police and fire facilities of the city. They also wish to regulate population density in the C-1 and C-2 business districts and provide open space in connection with multiple dwelling usage in the same areas. The council thinks their 60-40 ratio land use required in the amendment is "reasonable, necessary and vital for the health, safe-change at Highway One and the county extension of north Carpenter Street.

ty and welfare of Carmel."

The council also wishes rapid adoption of the ordinance to prevent an influx of new multiple dwelling construction. First step in making the zoning ordinance amendment law was taken yesterday afternoon when August 6 was set as the date for citizens to appear before the planning commission and express opinions at the public hearing.
